Valley donors ride to rescue rodeo parade

LIVERMORE — A handful of public spirited business people climbed on their white horses Friday afternoon, rode to the bank, and returned with the money which will probably save the Livermore Rodeo parade from extinction for at least one more year.

Marion "Tex" Spruiell, Dan Spruiell, realtors, E.E. "Gene" Morgan and Isabel Morgan, insurance, and Tom Bailey and Tony Peters, plumbers, comprised the sextet which rode to the rescue of the parade after the city of Livermore had refused financial support for the 1976 event.

With three donations of $500 each the Spruiells, Morgans, Bailey and Peters produced the $1,500 matching funds which will help finance the 58 year old event.

Earlier the Livermore City Council had refused to donate the $1,500 to match a $1,500 contribution by the Livermore Stockmen's Rodeo Association which would have financed the parade.

The money is to be used to procure trophies, ribbons and prizes, which without no first class parade is possible.

"Tex" Spruiell called an informal meeting at his office on L Street Friday afternoon to inform Joe Serpa, president of the Rodeo Association, and Lorenzo Oreglia, secretary of the Livermore Jaycees who have in the past coordinated the parade.

Oreglia said he would communicate the good news to his board of directors Tuesday and that all that is left to do is have the Jaycees formally move to accept the funds and agee to coordinate the event and the parade will take place.

Serpa, grinning broadly, said "Of course the Rodeo Association funds are available. There never has been any question about that." Spruiell issued a formal statement to the press, stating simply he and his associates were concerned about the possible discontinuance of the traditional annual rodeo parade and that they had decided to contribute $500 each to the Jaycees "so they can continue to do their usual outstanding job as parade coordinator.

"If the Jaycees accept our offer, we will not 'sponsor' dictate terms, direct, promote or place any strings, controls or contingencies upon this gift," he continued. "This is a one time gift, not to be construed as a precedent, but allowing the community ample time to decide for themselves (to find methods of funding) if this fine tradition is to continue for the year 1977.

"We don't believe this traditional event should be discontinued on the 200th birthday of our nation and the 100th birthday of Livermore.

Our businesses collectively represent over 75 years of service in the city. We think Livermore is the 'greatest.' Thank you, citizens of Livermore, hope you enjoy the parade." Serpa said he had been disappointed and a little hurt because "the city pulled out" particularly this Bicentennial year.

The Livermore Rodeo and the parade has been held ever since the first event in 1918.

This parade of colorfully costumed Mexicans will be marching out of history into the Valley today when the de Anza expedition comes down Tesla Road (pausing to dedicate a monument at 3 p.m., 11 miles south of town) and arrives at the Livermore library, 1000 South Livermore Ave., about 5 p.m.

Historic trek to valley relived in Livermore ceremonies today

LIVERMORE— Local Bicentennial festivities will come to a climax this afternoon with arrival of the de Anza re - enactment party in town.

Expedition members are re - creating the earliest colonization attempt, made 200 years ago when Juan Bautista de Anza led a group into the Bay Area from Arizona, then part of Mexico. Descendants of the explorers founded several California towns, including Livermore.

Here's the Sunday schedule:

NOON: Beginning of an all - day fiesta at The Barn off South Livermore Avenue sponsored by the Latin Organization for Betterment and Latin - American Services Organization. Admission is free; Latin entertainment and food will be featured.

3 p.m.: Anza party enters the area along Tesla Road, south of town, pausing to dedicate a monument donated by the Dublin Exchange Club at Campsite 102, Corral Hollow, 11 miles outside of town. Father John Dollard of St. Charles Borromeo Church will officiate.

4:30 p.m.: Pleasanton Bicentennial Band will give a concert outside the Livermore Library (next to Barn.)

5 p.m.: A monument at the library will be dedicated by Msgr. Robert Adams of St. Michael's Church.

5:30 to 7:30 p.m.: A steak barbecue at the Barn will be held for members of the expedition, city officials and members of the public who have tickets.

City views budget

PLEASANTON — There have been no surprises in the first nine months of the fiscal year, according to Assistant to the City Manager Jim Walker.

Walker and other city officials will present the mid - year budget review to the city council at 7:30 p.m. tomorrow in the city council chambers, 30 W. Angela St.

"The city is pretty much at the place projected in the 1975-76 budget," said Walker. "No unusual expenditures came up and there is no need to throw up any red flags about expenditures."

Things developed a little better than anticipated on the revenue side of the picture, said Walker. A higher number of building permits than expected was a big contributor to the revenue, he said.

Looking ahead to the rest of the year, Walker foresees the city current budget ending with a projected surplus of $320,399 out of a total $4 million budget. That's based on the assumption the city will be able to issue 491 building permits, a combination of 200 in the Valley Community Services District area and 291 in the Sunol sewer treatment area.

If the city doesn't get the 291 permits in the Sunol Area, the surplus would be $254,000 and if it doesn't sell permits in either area — a worse case assumption that probably won't come true, — the surplus would be $208,000. Surplus at the beginning of the budget year was $325,371.

Murray trustees to ponder intermediate school plan

Assistant Superintendent Heinz Gewing will report on options available to the Murray School District for an intermediate school at Monday night's regular meeting of the school board.

Trustees meet at 8 p.m. at Fallon School, 7425 Larkdale Ave. in Dublin.

Gewing and a committee composed of school principals, curriculum coordinator Les Schmidt and Phillip Chubb, business manager, have worked over possible options for presentation to the board Monday.

These options could take the form of converting one school to solely intermediate grade use, concentrating all seventh and eighth grade students at Wells Intermediate or remaining in the present housing status.

The board is expected to take action, following reception of the report, to organize further study and-or form a citizens advisory committee.

At present, Wells is the only solely seventh-eighth grade school in the district. Seventh and eighth graders also are housed (along with K-6 students) at Donlon, Nielsen and Dublin.

Board members will also hear a report of field review of programs funded through the Consolidated Application, first reading of policy on candidates' statements costs and second reading of a grievance procedure for classified employes.

A closed personnel session is also scheduled at the end of the public meeting.

CHP takes new action

Crackdown on out-of-state licensing

You say you've got this great skam going with your in-laws in Oregon where you send them $22 every two years and they register your car at their address? Saves you a neat $100 or so.

Or you own a cabin — small, nothing pretentious — on the Nevada side of Lake Tahoe, so you register the family buggies over there? Saves a pretty penny in these days of the tarnished dollar.

Well ... the game is up.

California, long on highways but short on funds to extend and maintain them, is after those prodigal siblings who leave their hearts in the Golden State, but their wallets scattered across the country.

"We're trying to keep California's vehicle registration fees down by making people who actually live and work in the state register their cars here," said Neil Dusenberry of the California Highway Patrol.

"Those people are using the highways, but the rest of us are paying for their maintenance. Some are giving money to maintain roads in state's where they'll never ever drive," he added emphatically.

The litany of "skams" is mind boggling — and humorous until you recall your last registration fee.

A new, expensive Corvette driving around Piedmont with shiney Alabama plates. A check of the plates shows the owner has a California driver's license, lives and works in the East Bay and claims a homeowner's exemption on his California house.

He readily admits to his "bargain" when confronted by the CHP.

His brother-in-law owns a business — in California — and has a fleet of trucks, all legally registered in Alabama.

Neither the trucks nor the expensive Corvette has seen a star fall on Alabama, and probably never will.

Corporate employes transferred from New Mexico or Nevada to California simply keep their out of state registrations. Post office boxes and friends addresses will suffice.

A central California agricultural concern with operations in Arizona registers its heavy equipment across the border, but moves the trucks to California for alternating harvests.

Two sets of highways, but one set of plates.

"The problem hasn't been examined in 25 years," Dusenberry said. "Two patrolmen started it in Contra Costa County and have pulled in $30,000 in back fees and penalties."

He's more ambitious. $38,000 since Jan. 15, 1976 — in southern Alameda County alone. Needless to say, he would like to see the program expanded.

He admits to a good break . A Bay Area open-road home dealer was charging $200 to make delivery in Oregon or Nevada. The multi - thousand dollar rigs — some go as high as $18,000 — were then registered at the point of delivery.

A double bonus: $22 instead of $400 or $450 in registration fees, and no sales tax in Oregon, or three percent in Nevada.

One "catch" broke the whole deal. $20,000 was netted in that one.

"The worst part about it," he says, "is that these are the people who can afford it. We're talking about open-road homes, Jaguars, Mercedes-Benz, Cadillacs ... Nothing cheap. People with land in Oregon or cabins in Nevada. And when we've caught them, they just write out the check. Doesn't even hurt."

The Department of Motor Vehicles can collect only three years back registration, no matter how long the car has been driven in the state.

But the penalty is 100 percent of the registration fee. A $400 registration on an $18,000 Belchfire-eight with chromium duals and twin plated slats, driven over the hi-and-by-ways of the Golden State for those three years will come to $2,400.

And if sales tax has never been paid, that's another six or six and one-half percent.

"There are millions of dollars lost in California because people who live and work in the state try to get a 'bargain' by going outside."

Of the 200 people he's caught, only one has ordered the issue to court, according to Dusenberry.

"The guy has a $100,000 home on the Nevada side of Lake Tahoe, and another home down here. He uses the Nevada house, but he lives down here, too. He claims that paying vehicle registration in Nevada is sufficient.

"I go to court on that one next week."

Legal residency has long been a bane of the courts, but Dusenberry claims they are fairly clear on this point.

"You can live in two states, and work in one or both, but you'll have to get dual registration for your car — any car, not just a commercial vehicle."

It's not so much a moral point, as he presents it, but a pragmatic one. Maybe those people register their cars in another state whose roads they regularly use. But they also use California's highways, yet don't pay for their maintenance.

He's looking for citizen help — "snitches," if you will — and he's had no problem finding them.

"Some people are really vindictive. They'll call us about a neighbor and say that so-and-so has had that Mercedes for the past five years and he's still driving around with Nevada plates. One guy has turned in 80 licenses; people he says he's followed to work and home and knows they're Californians. But we don't require the source's names. It's all confidential."

To prove a car or truck has been used in the state prior to the current registration — "Getting this year's money is easy," he says — requires witnesses who will swear the car has been driven here for so many years.

New arrivals in the state have one year or until their old plates expire, whichever comes first, to register in California.

"You have to understand that we're not collecting the money for the CHP. It goes to the Department of Motor Vehicles and then to the state highway fund.

Information, or complaints, may be phoned to him at the Hayward CHP office, 2434 Whipple Rd., 489-1500.

Landowner balks at purchase price offer for park site

LIVERMORE — The city seems to have run into a snag in its planned purchase of a small parcel at the southeast corner of Stanley Boulevard and Wall Street (adjacent to Pioneer Park).

The landowner, Guy Willis, who according to city staff several months ago agreed to sell the property for $21,000, has informed City Manager Bill Parness the city's offer of that amount is "unacceptable."

Willis, in a letter to Parness, suggested the price be negotiated in public and also enclosed a petition signed by more than 90 area residents who "enthusiastically encourage city council to take whatever action is necessary to purchase the property and approve it as an extention to Pioneer Memorial Park."

In his letter, Willis explains that "now that the council has agreed to purchase the Wall Street property, let's determine an equitable price."

The letter continues, "As you are very well aware the price I agreed to in 1974 represents a sizeable loss to me. That fact, plts the additional costs of taxes, legal fees, lost interests, advertising, etc. make the previous offer unacceptable."

Willis goes on to suggest a fair market price be established by considering four factors — prevailing prices of other lots in the area; the price the city paid for mini-park property at First Street and at Portola Avenue; the fact the Wall Street lot is among the very few available with building and sewer permits, and the price another bidder was willing to pay had the city permitted him to develop the lot.

In response, Parness has told the council "the references to other property purchases have no applicability to the subject property since a negotiated price was established some months ago."

The council in February directed the staff to negotiate with Willis for the property and stipulated the top price to be offered would be $21,000.

The council will consider Willis' most recent move regarding the purchase at its meeting Monday night and Parness has recommended it "reiterate its willingness to purchase the subject parcel at the sum of $21,000 which represents a final offer."

Santa Rita escapee nabbed by PD pooch

PLEASANTON — Cubby, a member of Pleasanton Police Department's canine corps, is credited with locating an escaped Santa Rita Rehabilitation Center prisoner late Friday night.

Raymond A. Alli, 19, of Hayward, was found hiding in a creekbed by Cubby and Pleasanton police officer Jay Graves and returned to Santa Rita. The prisoner suffered a broken foot in his escape try.

A resident of Woodthrush Road reported two suspicious appearing persons sitting in a pickup truck near his home at 11:25 p.m. to police. It took Graves, with the help of Cubby, only 13 minutes to respond and apprehend Alli with the help of other officers. A second suspect was not found.

Street signals' delay seen

LIVERMORE — Although traffic signals operate at the intersection of N. "P" and Chestnut streets, it may be a matter of months before signals are installed at P Street and Railroad Avenue and years before they go in along N. Livermore Avenue.

Both N. P Street and N. Livermore Avenue between Railroad Avenue and Chestnut Street are part of the railroad relocation project but signals only along that stretch of N. P Street are included under the project, according to Public Works Director Dan Lee.

In a memo to the city council prepared at the request of Dale Turner, Lee explains why it will be a while before signals go in at N. P Street and Railroad Avenue and that signalization of N. Livermore Avenue is included in the city's suggested six-year project budget. Until the signals are installed, four-way stop signs will continue to regulate traffic along N. Livermore Avenue at Railroad Avenue and Chestnut Street.

Traffic signals at N. P Street and Railroad Avenue await work by the Southern Pacific Railroad and a decision by the city on the configuration of Railroad Avenue between N. P Street and Stanley Boulevard, Lee states.

The Southern Pacific train traffic must be moved over to the Western Pacific Railroad right-of-way (over the bridge on N. P Street) and then the Southern Pacific tracks removed, according to Lee.

Then, the city must decide on the configuration of Railroad Avenue between N. P Street and Stanley Boulevard which in turn is contingent on a pending Central Business District study. Lee also notes the actual construction of this extention of Railroad Avenue will be done by the Southern Pacific Development Company — but it first must know the city's plans.

"In the meantime there seems to be no alternative to the four-way stop at the intersection," states Lee.

"The west approach to the intersection is restricted to a single lane in each direction because of the existing pavement width and a portion of the traffic signal that is already constructed and somewhat restricts traffic flow."

He estimates the Southern Pacific train traffic switch to the right-of-way over the bridge and related work alone will take four to five weeks.

Although Turner suggested making N. Livermore Avenue a through street with stop signs at its intersections with Railroad Avenue and Chestnut Street, Lee advises against the idea.

"The intersection is quite wide which creates a hazard if the Livermore Avenue traffic is allowed to flow through the intersection without stopping," Lee explains. "The sight distance and reaction time is so short in relation to the intersection size that autos are not able to clear the intersection before they are in conflict with traffic on Livermore Avenue."

Lee also states that cars approaching the intersection from the west cannot see southbound traffic coming out of the underpass.

"The four-way intersection solves those problems but is an inconvenience to the motorist," he concludes.

Maxine Plastino of Livermore, better known as the Zucchini Lady, has created hundreds of recipes utilizing the zucchini over the past 40 years.

Livermore's Zucchini Lady

Vegetable makes 229 dishes

By LILLY AULT

"This book is 10 years overdue," was one of the compliments Mrs. Maxine Plastino of Livermore received from Madison, Wisc., on her new "Zucchini Time" recipe book with 229 creations, all containing zucchini.

Recipes from appetizers to canning to cakes and main meal dishes are included in the book. She also gives information on freezing and drying fruits and vegetables.

"Three zucchini fritters" were the inspiration which led Mrs. Plastino into studying the vegetable. To her, any time is "Zucchini Time."

The member of Las Damas for 15 years, has been doing research and testing zucchini recipes for almost 40 years. She never stops dreaming up new ways to incorporate the green vegetable into a new dish.

Her latest "last minute" creation which is not included in the book is zucchini with fruit cocktail She marinated three zucchini in sherry, drained juice from the fruit cocktail, combined equal parts of juice and sherry, heated the mixture, added the zucchini and fruit cocktail and gained a 50 percent increase in serving capacity.

"To research the common food we know as zucchini has brought me much joy," stated Mrs. Plastino. "Garden grown food is less expensive, more nutritious and a great pleasure for an entire family to create.

"To grow food is satisfying, to have surplus is tragic. What a challenge to harness this source of food supply. This has been my desire since we first experienced this prolific vegetable in our Idaho garden years ago."

The energetic lady suggests that gardeners plant zucchini sparingly.

"Save your plants, energy, money and water," she says "Because zucchini is such a prolific plant, people should be aware that a great abundance can come about if over planted."

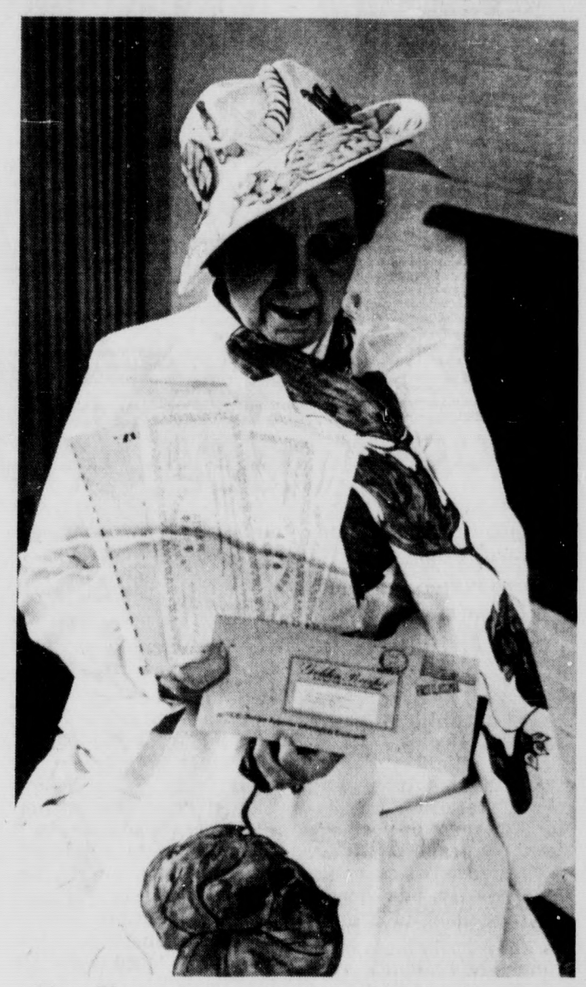
This creative lady doesn't even "waste" the seeds from her zucchini — she dries them out and makes jewelry.!

The inventive cook's love and enthusiasm for the plant did not limit her to just writing recipes for zucchini, she also incoporates zucchini drawings into her wardrobe. For instance, take one plain see-through plastic umbrella, an artistic hand for painting various sizes, shapes and parts of the zucchini on the inside of the umbrella and you yield one zucchini umbrella.!

In the kitchen, she can be seen wearing an apron with "Zucchini Lady" painted across the bottom.

Mrs. Plastino took her recipe book and made a complete ensemble out of it. She cut out the recipes, pasted them on contact paper which served an an attractive lining for the long skirt, then hand stitched around each recipe in black yarn.

The cover of her book served as an attractive top coat also trimmed in black to coordinate with the skirt. A purse hand painted with the vegetable compliments her "zucchini" outfit which is topped off with a cleverly decorated zucchini hat.



Mrs. Plastino's ingenuity in utilizing the zucchini has earned for her three Certificates of Merit from the Golden Recipes Contest. She is pictured wearing the costume she designed to promote the abundant, economical vegetable.

Mrs. Plastino has received three "Certificate of Merits" for her recipes she submitted to the Golden Recipes in La Jolla, Calif. Two of the recipes submitted, "Chocolate Zucchini Cake" and "Ricotta Cheese Pancakes" are eligible for publication in an edition of a new cookbook entitled, "Potpourri of Cookery."

"Potpourri" is a unique collection of favorite recipes dedicated to discovering unrecognized culinary talent, publishing their recipes and helping them to gain the reward they deserve.

The Zucchini Lady now has an opportunity to receive $1,000 if one of her recipes is selected as the annual "Golden Four Star Award." Other possible cash prizes include $100 for each one star award; $250 for each two star award and $500 for each three star award.

There is no limit to the number of one star awards. At least 10 awards will be made by the recipe selection committee of Golden Recipes. The $250 award will be paid for each "course" of a meal. A minimum of four will be awarded.

The $500 award is made for any dishes selected by the committee due to special merit. At least one award will be made in the category. Only one award will be made in the $1,000 category.

Mrs. Plastino's collection of recipes may be the only record left behind of beloved relatives, now gone, who served well-prepared meals using zucchini as a "labor of love" at home. To the homemaker, "Mom," Mrs. Plastino dedicates her research with the zucchini — King of the Garden!

Additional information on the recipe book may be obtained by calling Mrs. Plastino at 447-7147.

Five community projects benefit from Mardi Gras

Representatives of these organizations attended a meeting at which checks amounting to $13,723.91 were distrubuted as follows:

The Pleasanton Emergency Relief Fund, represented by Shirley Casterson, received $1,000 to sustain its operations.

The Tri-Valley Volunteer Bureau, a new organization in need of funds for maintenance and equipment, received $2,000. The check was accepted by Betty Stallings and Nancy Cotton.

Ken Mercer and Callie Heinbaugh, on behalf of the Pleasanton Bicentennial Commission, received $3,000 for publications of the special bicentennial pictorial history book on Pleasanton's heritage.

Valley Memorial Hospital, represented by Tom Andrews and Barbara Gay, received $2,500 for purchase of a slide projector with tape recording unit to be used in educational programs.

The Bicentennial Horizons Committee, represented by Ken Mercer, received an additional $5,223.91. The Juniors will be consulted as to the disposition of this money.

The annual Mardi Gras season is the major fund-raising project conducted by the Pleasanton Junior Women's Club, and demands participation by every member of the club, in addition to the effort of Mardi Gras candidates.

The club extends its gratitude to the community for its support in raising $13,723.91 during the 1976 Mardi Gras season.

Bouncing on a trampoline, crawling through tires are two "Kindergym" activities that get toddlers to enjoy movement.

Valley Christian's 'Kindergym' sparks tots' physical training

DUBLIN — A gym class for toddlers?

As they race around the house, tipping over lamps and pulling books off shelves, they may not seem to need any more exercise than they get. But, experts tell us, this may not be the kind of movement that builds strong muscles and confident minds.

Valley Christian Center has an answer — "Kindergym," half an hour a week of motor and perceptual training.

The Kindergym program is designed for children 1 through 5. Classes meet for eight weeks per session, Monday afternoons at 4 - 4:30 or 4:30 to 5 p.m.

The center is at 7400 San Ramon Road, Dublin (828 - 4850.)

Mrs. Mary Rainey, a graduate of Stanford University and a specialist in motor and perceptual training, is teaching the classes.

"Many children have forgotten how to play and are hypnotized by their TV sets," she observes "Too often we find these children feeling insecure and unwilling to explore their physical natures and so they never experience the fun of having a freely moving, flexible body.

"Movement education is one solution to their their problem, although it is only a tool, and a tool is only as good as the master using it. Movement education can be used to free children from their fears of failure and to rekindle in them the excitement of solving their own problems. The children are free to move at the pace they choose.

Law practice tagged 'paper work jungle'

Alameda County Bureau

OAKLAND — The age of Clarence Darrow type criminal lawyers, whose dramatic flair and legal insights kept jurors on the edges of their chairs and drove prosecutors mad with envy, is over, claims county public defender James C. Hooley.

The famed turn of the century attorney would be lost in the "paper work jungle" traditionally reserved for civil cases that increasingly has become the domain of the criminal lawyer.

"An observable shift in emphasis from jury trials to pre-trial work has taken place in criminal law over the past eight years," says Hooley.

"A decade ago, every Alameda County Public Defender with two or three years of office experience tried 20 to 40 felony jury trials each year . . . Today plea bargaining has transformed (his department) into an office where an attorney is the exception if he defends in twenty jury trials in five years or more."

Today's practices "require the completion of a seemingly endless number and type of written motions," he continues. "It seems that the computer will inevitably replace law clerks and attorneys as the scope of research in criminal cases becomes clearly defined through repetition."

The goal in criminal cases now resembles that of civil procedure, says the department's chief lawyer, namely "a pre-trial settlement at a level acceptable to all parties and preferably to (the public defender's) client."

The contemporary system presents its "abominable side" when an innocent client is convicted through plea bargaining, he charges.

As the deparment's case load increases and the emphasis shifts from the courtroom to technical maneuvering, the incompetent attorney can find his niche in the system by viewing it as a "market place" where he "creates the unreviewable reputation of 'competence' when he obtains 'good deals' for his clients."

Alameda County thwarts this course of least resistance by providing each client with representation by more than one attorney "so that each major level in the legal process of the case is controlled and evaluated by a different public defender."

"One sees examples of the inherent danger of plea bargaining when defendants with valid legal or factual defenses are dissuaded, persuaded, induced or even coerced from presenting defenses in open court because attorneys believe they know what is best for the client", he concludes.

The pre-trial shift also can be seen in his office's recruitment and attrition.

A "Slight emphasis" has now been placed on academic skills rather than the "psychological, dramatic, individual and adversary talents of the candidates," says Hooley.

"We are developing some good trial attorneys, but of the few who recently resigned from the office, the majority deserted the practice of law and moved to calmer futures as professors, instructors or deans in law schools throughout the country.

Applications for positions in his office outnumber vacancies by "a hundred fold or more," he notes. The 95 attorneys in his office now earn from $1,240 to $2,293 per month, up from the $1,136 to $2,102 paid in 1974.

The increase in pre-trial dispositions has its positive side, tooz according to Hooley, namely the disappearance of the "emotional attorney 'burn-out' that resulted from the pressure of constant jury trials."

The frustration of the "paper work jungle," however, still leaves a 'burn-out,' but of a considerably lesser degree. Vacations and extended leaves of absence are requested regularly and granted to fight this newest malady.

Hooley's 12 page report covers calender year 1974. County departments are given one year to assemble data and publish their findings. The work is done by clerks and secretaries in their spare time.

Employing 95 attorneys, 20 investigators and 40 clerks and stenographers in 1974, the department handled 31,710 cases, an eight percent increase from 1973.

Felony cases rose from 5,140 to 5,964, a 16 percent increase, while appeals and writs jumped 98 percent to 119 filed in 1974.

Total court appearances, however, fell by 1.5 percent to 65,752.

Examine residence policy McCloud advises council

PLEASANTON — The city council should consider drawing a policy on residency requirements for fire and police personnel, Director of Public Safety Walt McCloud said Monday.

McCloud told a study session of the city council that he is concerned primarily with the middle management positions in his department.

Such personnel are on call for special duty and long distances could be an important factor, said McCloud. For example, if a police sergeant were promoted to lieutenant, he could be placed in charge of the patrol division and be called out for decision making and command control in serious emergencies. The city's current policy of no restrictions on residency could present a problem, said McCloud.

"What real value is it to fast - moving field problems if the K-9 officer lived in Manteca," said McCloud. "Three of the six police sergeants have already moved to other cities, one of which is in another county. Many police partolmen have also sold local homes and located as far away as the city of Tracy in San Joaquin County," said McCloud.

The current policy also presents a problem in regard to off - duty officers, said McCloud. He is concerned about officers who reside in other cities and counties and still expect to take their 24 hour right to carry a concealed gun with them. "Who is liable if an officer living in Manteca gets wrongfully involved with his firearm over a traffic, bar or dance dispute in Stockton," asked McCloud. "Does the officer need to protect himself from Pleasanton enemies while living in Los Banos or should he or we be concerned with giving added police protection to such a distant city?"

McCloud said he wants to refer the question of a policy to the city attorney and city council.

Dublin School's Senate

Ronda Sigler, clerk, and Doni Heier, vice president of the Senate, call roll for one of the bills presented in model Senate held during past week in classes of Doris Battin and Sharon Carrick at Dublin Elementary School. Below, Senator Roger Smith and Senator Mark Weaver present bill on pedal cars.

Dublin School classes conduct model Senate

DUBLIN— "Be it resolved that anyone over the age of 14 can smoke marijuana but if caught with over three ounces they shall be sentenced to juvenile hall for one year or pay a fine of $200.

"And for six months they must check with a parole officer at an interval of once a week."

So states one of the many bills considered and acted upon during the past week in the model Senate conducted in the classrooms of Sharon Carrick and Doris Battin at Dublin Elementary School.

Each person in class wrote a bill in legislative fashion and then spoke on behalf of that bill before "the Senate," which was composed of students representing states and sitting as either Republicans or Democrats.

Gaveling the Senate was Doni Heier, an eighth grader like the other officers and members of the Senate.

Ronda Sigler served as clerk and the Republican leadership was composed of Sen. Scott Compton, party whip, and Sen. Tony White, floor leader.

The Democratic leadership team was composed of Sen. Carmela Toledo, party whip, and Sen. Jerry Harbinson, floor leader.

Their counterparts included Kristin Salisbury, vice president; Laura Ojeda, floor leader, and Di-Ann Maciejewski, party whip, for the GOP, and Charlotte Anderson, floor leader, and Jane Raiger, party whip, for the Democrats.

Susie Staley served as clerk.

Among the bills written and acted upon were those on ecology, alcoholism, child abuse, two bills on marijuana, veneral disease and....pedal cars.

The bill on alcoholism recommended that alcoholics be kept off the streets and placed in rehabilitation homes. The less specific of the two bills on alcoholism was defeated but the one by Senators Shari Vanderpool and Sharon Scott was approved.

The child abuse bill also passed. It stated that parents convicted of child abuse would have to go to counseling sessions "until he or she is fully reformed".... the special counseling or schooling to be government-funded.

The exercise in legislative procedures culminated a unit by the two teachers on government.

—by Al Fischer

School procedures reviewed

(The following article is the first of two articles on teaching procedures and methods as utilized at Pleasanton Middle School. Author is Tom Leonard, instructor in individual reading at the school)

The phrase "participative management" has evolved to describe the response by a concerned power structure to growing teacher agitation. The idea is simple: let teachers have a big say in determining what happens in their schools.

The phrase could be just words—establishment jargon aimed to pacify while empty of substance in real practice.

However, at many schools, certainly at Pleasanton Elementary, the term has stood for real action and has had a dramatic impact on the total school program.

At Pleasanton, several committees involve hosts of teachers making decisions that allow them to function better as teachers and thus, hopefully, allow for a better education for their students.

On the curriculum committee, for example, each department gets a chance to make its case for whatever size slice of the school budget allocation it deems necessary. While the principal has ultimate authority, departmental shares are generally decided through carefully reasoned committee consensus.

The committee also has final say in adopting any new curriculum proposals which will affect a significant number of students. For example, a new remedial reading program, based in part on staff research of successful programs developed in other California schools, is now being readied for next year.

Its guidelines for operation and how it will be integrated into the total school program are matters which must eventually get the curriculum committee okay An ad hoc committee, formed for the purpose of arriving at specific remedial reading recommendations, the remedial reading committee is itself composed of many teachers, several of them from outside the English department.

The committee for better school communication serves as sort of an official trouble - shooting group before which staff members bring non - curriculum related problems for discussion and possible solution.

The problems might range from gripes about yard - duty assignments to the handling of excessive student tardies and how to curb student smoking. The CBSC also handles the planning for school functions such as assemblies and end - of - the - year graduation activities.

The school appraisal committee attempts to zero in on the needs of children who require more than normal individual attention, often kids who show consistently poor behavior in class.

Who should we sue for smog?

Events of the past week, here and in San Francisco, brought at least one clear answer to the air pollution mystery which has enshrouded this Valley for many troubled months and years.

Thanks to one smog expert's appearance in Pleasanton, and his boss's testimony before a higher panel of review across the Bay, we can all now be sure of one thing: The urban centers where most air pollution originates are free to continue manufacturing the stuff, and exporting it to their unfortunate down - wind neighbors.

Unfair? No doubt. Illegal? Possibly, although no one has yet tested the question before an appropriate court.

There are numerous cases involving the pollution of water sources. Invariably, the up - stream polluter (industry, rancher or an entire city) is restrained from "degrading" the water supply that must eventually flow down to another consumer.

The waste dischargers in this Valley are aware of the force of such law, having been compelled to spend millions of dollars — with tens of millions still to come — to clean up our own effluent before discharging that purified water into channels that wind up in Fremont and Union City.

It does not matter that Fremont has now converted historic drainage channels into carriers of that city's fresh water supply. The only question is that the polluter must desist once the pollutee complains.

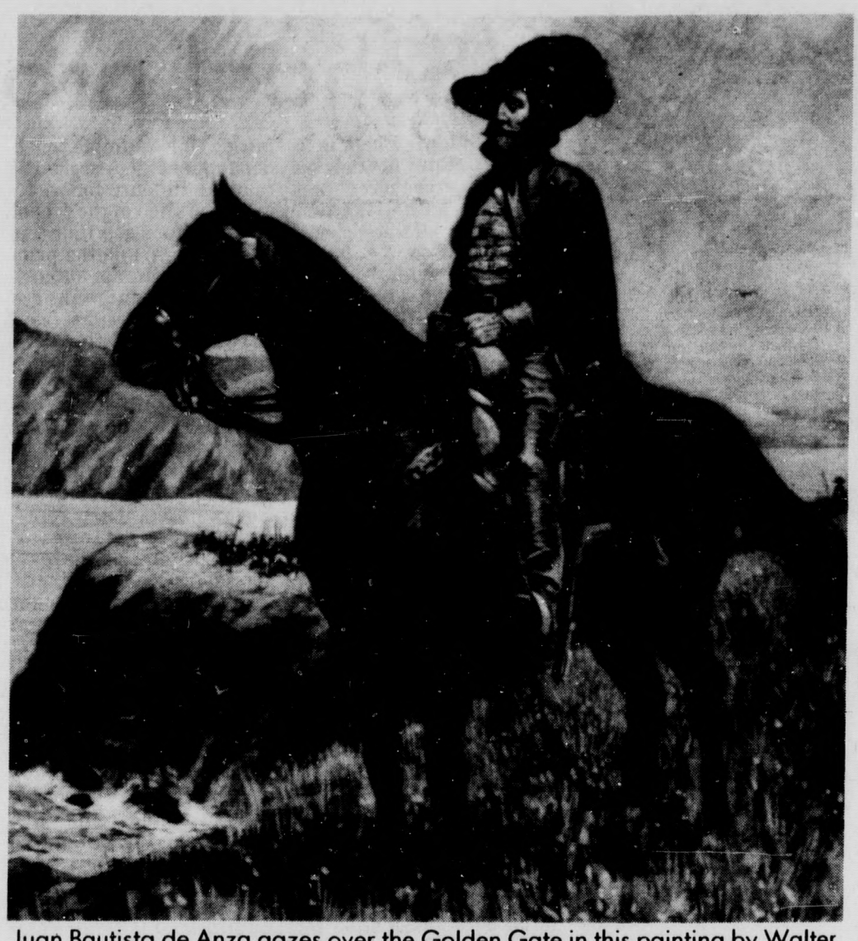
But that does not apply to the great sources of smog. The Bay Area Air pollution Control District knows that "from 25 to 75 percent" of the smog that gathers in this Valley originates in such places as Martinez, San Leandro and San Jose.

Because those cities enjoy "a natural flushing action" the pollution they create does not stay long there. It moves up and out, seeking "places like your own Valley where the inverted bowl effect and the warm sunshine combine to give you those bad smog days."

San Jose enjoys no such "natural flushing action," and therefore keeps much of its own smog. But by no means all. "When we have a bad air pollution day in San Jose, we can almost count on Livermore getting it the next day." That's what the air pollution experts tell us.

They also tell us that "we have no authority to stop Santa Clara County from developing a major new attraction like that amusement park." Even though the "Disneyland of the North" will attract millions of cars each year to the San Jose area, producing thousands of pounds of pollutants which will eventually be dumped on the valleys of Livermore, Amador and San Ramon.

What can we do about it? We could sue. Get the high courts of this land to make the same determination about our atmosphere that has long ago been rendered for other natural resources: The source of the pollution must be made to desist, when others are made to suffer.



Juan Bautista de Anza gazes over the Golden Gate in this painting by Walter Francis. The noted explorer is being honored in the valley today.

The week in retrospect

Crucial week for schools

The next three days could be extremely vital ones not only for school boards in three valley districts but to the residents of same.

Murray School District board members will receive a report on options for an intermediate school at Monday night's meeting scheduled for Fallon School at 8 p.m.

On Tuesday, the Amador Valley Joint High School District board convenes at Foothill High School at 8 — presumably they'll have a quorum on deck at the appointed time of the meeting. One of the items will be the board's response to the Amador Valley Secondary Educators' Association contract proposal of a month ago.

A board response to a teacher group's contract proposal is also forthcoming on Wednesday when the Pleasanton Joint School District board gathers at 7:30 p.m. at the District Educational Center, 123 Main St. in Pleasanton.

The latter two responses should give teachers and the public - at - large an excellent indication of how negotiations might proceed.

It is quite obvious that teachers are not going to get all or even most of their salary and benefit requests affirmed.

The economic "hard times" will be with us for some time to come. The administration and boards of the two districts have long since realized this and have tax measures on the June 8 ballot.

What they must do in the intervening time is bargain in good faith with the Certificated Employees Council of each district, not knowing how much they'll really have available until after the electorate has made its feelings known slightly more than two months from now.

Thus, two budgets are being worked up for each district — one reflecting a plurality of "yes" votes and a second should the tax hike be voted down.

But taxpayers should not wait until June 8 to decide the financial fates of the two districts. An effort should be made, starting with this Tuesday and Wednesday nights, to learn first hand what the teachers want in the way of salary and benefits and what the districts have to give.

If there is to be any friction, it will start smoking this week. And it's the taxpayers who could get burned in the long run.

The Murray situation is somewhat different.

It is time for not only a report on the options open to the district in light of a bond issue defeat and funding turndown by the State Allocations Board, but involvement (by the board of trustees) of parents in those "directions" the district might take from this week on.

The time has long since arrived for putting ALL the cards on the table.

We're speaking of not only those leftover bond monies from 1972 but WHY the district did not (in the early 70s) build a school and why it CANNOT now.

Board members familiar with that time period (early 70s), Superintendent Donald Williams and Business Manager Phillip Chubb can supply those answers but, whether or not they do, this newspaper most certainly will.

The proper and best procedure would be for the board to bring all the facts to light so that the district may proceed in a positive and resolute fashion.

Letters to the Times

Kinney's vote

Editor, The Times:

Our previous mayor, Kinney, who is now running for a seat on the Zone 7 Board, seems to be trying to deny that he looks favorably toward Gelderville. He claims that his lone "No" vote on the resolution (that the building of Gelderville not be sanctioned by the Pleasanton City Council) was strictly because he felt he had insufficient information to warrant voting for the resolution.

Well, if that were the case, really, why didn't he abstain from voting? Why did he again display his negative attitude? ... There is no other effect possible when a "No" vote is cast than that this councilman did not want the measure to be put into action. Therefore, whether he realized it or not, in this instance he was voting to favor sanctioning Gelderville "because he did not have sufficient information!" The logic of that reasoning escapes me.

Surely, the Tri-Valley deserves Zone 7 members who will rationalize better than this, and who will think and act more positively than he is doing. I contend that because of the technical nature of Zone 7 operations, the Board members need to have a strong technical background to be reliable. This needs to be one of their prime qualifications along with leadership ability. Kinney's negative reactions to date bear this out.

That machine

Editor, The Times:

It is always amusing to hear editorial cries of "Machine" against the over 600 local families who support citizen goals with their volunteer efforts and small financial contributions.

The Valley Times and Independent newspapers have now uncovered the works of a real machine — The Developer - Herald/News Machine. This machine is raising money in the Zone 7 campaign to 1) Stop Miller and Futch and 2) support "candidates favorable to Gelderman's New Town." Although Herald editors deny it, the machine's slate of candidates was specifically named at their March 25th meeting. It consists of Marguth, Kinny, and Schweser.

Among those from out of town at the recent "secret" meeting were developer and Hayward Councilman George Oakes (Hayward), a Stoneson representative (San Francisco), and Herald publisher Floyd Sparks (Hayward). Developer Harlan Gelderman (Danville) was to speak at the next machine meeting. The Zone 7 election is materializing into a clear-cut struggle for local control as these powerful "out-of valley" financial interests attempt to manipulate our elected boards for their private purposes.

We can all be grateful that the Developer - Herald/News Machine slate of Marguth - Kinney - Schweser has been so clearly identified as pro-Geldertown this early in the campaign. The public can now "read between the lines" of the denials and vague rhetoric of these candidates and discern their true positions.

Nothing doing?

Editor, The Times:

I looked through your paper of the above date and did not notice any announcements of coming events that one could take part in which to meet people of the community. Is it possible that there is so little going on that there is nothing to report?

Rampant crime

Editor, The Times:

I hope every women will read the Good Housekeeping magazine article about a "whistle" campaign to protect citizens from attack. If you read the "Rap Sheet" column, in this paper it is quite evident that something should ba done in this area, now.

If "good" people do nothing, for sure, "bad people" will do plenty.

We do not have to let criminals take over, let's get together and protect ourselves.

Looking back

A vascular surgeon takes time from his practice in Mexico to lead a parade of horses and people down through Contra Costa County and into Livermore. It is all done in tribute to a venture undertaken some two centuries ago, by a hardy band bent upon settling a new land.

In Pleasanton, a new band of hardies wade through a staggering list of projects, programs and fund raisers. They are dedicated to "the Bicentennial" ... trying to recapture something of the community's past, in keeping with the nation's birthright.

In 1976 The Times carries a spread of photos that look like something out of the family album. (Which in fact they were.) It is our salute to "the birth of the Town of Livermore in April of 1876." The response from readers is enthusiastic, overshadowing anything we have printed about our 20th Century woes.

"It's the nostalgia craze," some claim. New movies about the old days. TV series that glorify "the swinging fifties." Everywhere, at any opportunity, people are hungry for a glimpse of how it was. It is as though they are tired of how things really are.

But we think not. There is no shame in looking back. There is no loss in finding where we are now, from where we used to be.

That is the real strength of this whole bicentennial movement. Those who have gone before, who did all those daily chores that we now find so exciting, could care less about our rose - colored reflections. It is for us, not for them, that we go through this nostalgic charade.

It is a game that gains life and substance and meaning only if we understand that men and women of that era did what had to be done.

And then we must find ways to apply that standard against the reality of our own lives, the sum of our contribution.

Those who rode and walked a thousand dusty miles in search of a new land were not the heroes and the heroines of their day. They were people who saw a challenge, a mountain to be crossed, a village to be built. And they did the best they could.

Each of us has miles to walk and challenges to be met, and cities to be built. We wonder if another generation in another time, will look back to our contribution, and find reason to salute the courage of 1976.

Lighter Times

One of the more intriguing courses on the Amador Adult Education schedule this spring is one titled "Know Your Pleasanton Birds"!

Only problem is that Mike Connolly, major domo of the adult ed. aviary, has left out a few birds frequently seen flying about the valley's skyways.

In an effort to make this a COMPLETE course, I am herewith providing Connolly and his class members with a description of species known only to certain segments of the valley population.

Best know of these is the TRIVIA BIRD. A frequenter of the Sunol Country Club area, the Trivia Bird reputedly nests from time-to-time at the Pleasanton Hotel and can be easily lured by exotic liquids. The little beastie is next expected in Sunol on April 30.

Another frequenter of the area is the QUARRY HAWK, sub-phylum Gravellus Truckus.

The bird spends its day soaring up and down Stanley Boulevard and First Street, nesting at night in convenient ruts on Neal or Division Streets.

A very aggressive two-legged creature, it occasionally flys into the council chambers on Angela and tries to attack Ken Scheidig's chair.

Last but not least is the SLUDGEPIPER, a true dirty bird.

The average Sludgepiper has a very short life. It is characterized by its triangle-shaped eyes and dirty gray-brown feathers.

Its days are spent swooping over new housing subdivisions emitting a shrill cry, "Yick! - Yick! - Yick!"

At night, the Sludgepiper returns to the sewage treatment plant on Sunol Boulevard or to the VCSD sludge ponds where it spends a restless night bobbing on the surface of the ponds giving forth its shrill cry.

Sound and Fury

Walt Hecox

Perhaps it is premature to say there will be a Livermore Rodeo parade come June 12, but knowing the Livermore Jaycess as I do, I think not.

The drums will beat and the pipes will play, not lowly and slowly, but with a cheerful rhythm while the bands march down First Street in midmorning on that second weekend in June.

If that is the case I did a little public weeping a little early last Sunday, but I will not apologize for the piece.

Frankly I don't get to see too many rodeo parades any more. Instead of watching the show on First Street, I am out at the Rodeo headquarters in Robertson Park sampling the potato salad and cold cuts which have been laid out by the ladies who assist the association and counting cars as they file down that long, slender strip of asphalt from Wente Avenue to the parking lot.

I only get to see a fragment of the parade and must always park my automobile on the south side of First Street where I will be able to make a quick getaway and lead the throng to the place where the show takes place.

Yet the event is dear to my heart.

I don't know how many times I have watched the event from a fine vantage point, a fire escape on the north side of the Schenone Building, and how many times I have had to leave early for Robertson Park. Over a nine year span I would say it is a 50-50 proposition.

Frankly I would prefer to watch the event from beginning to end and I am by no means alone.

Lorenzo Oreglia, secretary of the Jaycees and one of the moving spirits behind the parade, took a poll along First Street recently to see how the merchants along the city's main street felt about the event.

He ignored the restaurants and bars, knowing full well all of them would favor the parade. They are the big beneficiaries.

Oreglia discovered that almost to a man, and woman, folks on First Street favored the parade, though most felt their business was hurt more than helped by the event.

Some business houses in First Street close their doors and mingle with the mob when the event is in progress. There is little chance anyone is going to be shopping while the bands march by and the floats glide past.

Still they love the parade and want it to continue.

Their attitude probably reflects that of most of Livermore.

As near as I can tell this is a valley which loves parades. Pleasanton has them coming out its ears. When there is no real reason to hold a parade in that shady village some one invents a cause.

Witness the annual "Good Times" parade which is the result of a a wager some years ago between a pair of San Francisco disc jockeys.

"Hell, its mom and apple pie, flag and country and one whale of a lot of fun," one businessman in Livermore declared. "Its American as the Star Spangled Banner and everyone loves the parade."

Of course that was only one man's opinion, but it probably is reflected to some degree by most of Livermore's citizens.

That city where the Rad Lab grew between rows of vitis vinifera grapes and flanking cattle lands is a strange community by any definition.

It is a boom town where it appears the well will never run dry, where gold will continue to pour from the mine and prosperity for the majority is a way of life.

Boom towns come and go usually, fading with the vein of ore or the flow of oil and leaving in their wake empty buildings and decaying streets.

Livermore's gold comes from a different source, flowing from that vast complex on East Avenue now known as the Livermore Lawrence Laboratory.

Rarely has a city endured so many changes in such a short time without some sort of trauma and Livermore has been no exception.

For many years the ranchers of yesterday and the scientists of today lived in harmony and, if not understanding, mutual respect.

Recently a third element, the suburban commuter has been added to the valley population.

With them all came problems. Schools were crowded and inadaquate, taxes in a city where the prime industry provides no tax base, were high, sewer treatment capacities and water supplies dwindled, smog blew in through Dublin Canyon and harmony went to hell.

A city with all those problems needs something to bring the people together for a short time at least, a source of community pride and, to spread a little corn, a good time for all.

I think the parade, more than anything else, restores some of the old time harmony. You don't have to be a cowboy to enjoy the marching bands. There will be Doctors of Science on the sidewalk with their children come June 12.

I, for one, can't thank Tex and his pals enough for making it possible.

ARIES (March 21-April 19) It's a day when you'll feel restless unless you have a lot to do, so don't be afraid to take on two or three projects.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20) Don't feel you're being selfish today if you're thinking of personal gain: Some days you have to get the best of the bargain!

GEMINI (May 21-June 20) When you make the scene today, things should really start happening. Your bubbling personality pumps pep into proceedings.

CANCER (June 21-July 22) Someone you've known for a long time would deeply appreciate hearing from you today. If you can't visit, at least call her.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22) You won't be content today with people who think narrowly. Pal around with those who have a broad perspective. You'll be much happier.

VIRGO Aug. 23-Sept. 22) You're likely to be a shade or two better than the competition today. If you win, accept your laurels graciously.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 23) If you have faith in yourself today, it'll be obvious to others and will serve as an inspiration to those of fainter heart.

SCORPIO (Oct. 24-Nov. 22) You can change things today. Even obstacles that seem insurmountable will fall if you really set your mind to overcoming them.

SAGITTARIUS (Nvo. 23-Dec. 21) Footloose and fancy-free though you usually are, you work much better today when teamed with one whom you respect.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan 19) Though others may be looking for a cozy spot in the shade to take it easy today, you won't be happy if you're idle.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 19) Today you will be in a very gregarious mood. If you can't be near the folks you love, then love the folks you're near.

PISCES (Feb. 20-March 20) Family-oriented pleasures are dear to your heart today. It's fine to have friends around, but keep the action on the home court.

Amador edges Dublin, 1-0

Mike Garrigan's splendid one - hit shutout of Dublin High Friday afternoon ruined Amador Valley plans for a pitching rotation.

In fact, there is no more rotation, says coach Don Bush.

John McGraw might whirl in his grave, but Bush can throw darts at a board and come up with a solid starter since Garrigan joined the staff of Rob Wicks and Mike Krikorian by cooling the Gaels, 1-0.

Originially scheduled for only three or four innings after his layoff, Garrigan went the distance in masterful style. Now Bush feels like the owner of a greeting card company. He can select just the proper model for every occassion.

"We'll play it as to who we feel can do the job for each game," the Amador coach said "Wicks is scheduled to go Tuesday, but we'll wait and see. It's awfully nice to have three guys like that to count on, and we've even got some other kids who can throw."

If they do it like Garrigan, there's bound to be an investigation of recruiting practices.

Between chomps on a wad of bubble gum, Garrigan struck out six Dublin batters and walked three. The lone hit was a legitimate single by Jerry Puertas to introduce the second inning.

No Gael advanced past second base against Garrigan during the entire game. Never did Dublin send more than four batters plateward in a single inning.

The senior left-hander caused some seventh - inning dramatics by walking leadoff hitter Puertas, but set down the next three for his first EBAL triumph.

"I was kind of worried about his control because he's rusty," said Bush. "But it was excellent. He got the ball where he wanted it most of the time, and he hung in there on a couple of tough situations."

Garrigan utilized an overhand curve ball and a side armed fast ball ("the ball moves more from the side,") to baffle Dublin hitters.

He also took advantage of Amador's defense, and gave it credit for the triumph.

"They made all the plays," Garrigan said of his teammates. "They made it easy for me. You've got to credit them."

You certainly do when a team wins two of its first three games, scoring just six runs.

The Dons touched losing pitcher Alan Schaut for only four base hits. They held off the Gaels, however, by flagging down everything in the field.

Third baseman Don Palmer initiated the trend when Mike Laudenbach launched the second pitch of the game toward left field Palmer sprawled to his left, stabbed the bouncing ball and cut down the runner at first base.

Catcher Mark Bevilacqua contributed in the second inning by picking Puertas off after his single.

In the top of the third, it was shortstop Mike Johnson's time to sparkle. With one out and Dublin's John Rodriguiz on second base, Johnson ranged into the hole for a Laudenbach chopper. Johnson had no chance at first base, so instead, lobbed to Palmer who tagged Laudenbach.

Johnson came back in the sixth inning to pluck a high bounder out of the sky and throw out Robin Sherwood.

"He made a great play on that high ball," said Bush. "He took his time and rifled it. Mike is an exceptional ball player, and a heady one.

"The whole defense played well," Bush continued. "Palmer started it off right in the first inning and they did a good job all the way.

"The defense has been consistent all season long. Oh, there have been a few bad plays here and there, but most of the time, it's been good."

Bush insists the offense has too.

It didn't look that way against Schaut, however, who also struck out six, and walked none.

Amador's biggest thrill at the plate was an out. Bevilacqua rocketed a Schaut fast ball deep to left field in the third inning. It appeared headed for the basketball courts and two points, but Puertas turned this way, then the other way, and overhauled the ball in mid air.

Perry hurls no-hitter as Pokes breeze, 4-0

A young team will experience some ups and downs during the course of a season.

Foothill High School's baseball team is following that pattern. After taking a convicing win over Dublin Tuesday the Falcons fell victim to the no-hit pitching of Livermore's Jeff Perry Friday afternoon on the Foothill diamond. The Pokes took a 4-0 decision to raise their EBAL record to 2-1.

Perry hurled seven strikeouts and walked three batters during his finest hour.

What kind of pitch did he use the most?

"A little bit of everything," he said before dashing to the Cowboy bus to escape the driving Valley wind. "This was my first no-hitter in high school."

Foothiil, now 1-2 in EBAL action, failed to get any kind of a threat going against Perry.

The Falcons had three baserunners picked off on attempted steals. All three baserunners got on base as the result of walks.

Livermore struck quickly in the first inning for two runs that sealed the Falcons' fate. Lead - off batter Dan Wood reached first on an outfield error by the Falcons. Left fielder Kenny Watts then stroked a line drive into left field that bounced unto the blacktop for an automatic 'home run'.

The Cowboys added two more runs in the fourth inning. A walk and an error aided the Pokes.

Perry was at his best in the seventh. After walking the first batter he got Jack Ballas and Pat Geck to ground into fielders' choices. He then fanned first baseman Dennis Lee for the final out of the game.

Cowboy mentor Kevin Drake wasn't completely satisfied with his team's victory.

"Besides Perry's pitching Watts did a fine job hitting the ball. However, we're still leaving too many players stranded on base.

"Next week is a big week for us," he continued. "We play Amador and Granada and they are our traditional rivals."

On the losers' side, pitcher Mike Krikorian was again excellent in defeat. He allowed but four hits, struck out seven and walked five batters.

Grizzlies defeat Wolves, stay unbeaten in EBAL

Like the man said, "ya gotta believe!"

California High School's impressive come - from - behind 5-4 win over San Ramon, Friday on the Wolves' diamond in Danville, should add a few EBAL baseball fans to the ranks of the believers.

Fielding its first-ever varsity nine, the south San Ramon area school was not expected to mount much of a threat against the established EBAL teams.

However, the Grizzlies, who are, save for one, all sophomores and juniors, had just enough poise and determination in Friday's contest with the so-far winless Wolves, to overcome wobbly pitching and a paucity of hits in the early innings.

All's well that ends well, it has been said, but for San Ramon, an auspicious beginning melted away to a heartbreaking defeat, due in no small part to an onset of the "blahs" in late inning pitching, plus some mightly costly errors, committed throughout the game.

At the end of the first inning it didn't appear that Cal would be picking up a third win against no losses in EBAL action. San Ramon sent nine batters to the plate and put three runs on the scoreboard, on three hits in their half of the inning.

San Ramon's DH Rick Hanson led off the bottom of the first with a single, and went to second on Ed Aitken's sacrifice. Greg Bishop followed with a single, and with runners at first and third, Paul Miller hit a slow roller back to the Cal second bagger Mark Smith. He made the play at the plate, but his throw was late as Hanson scored easily.

Cal's pitcher Bret Cary then walked Mitch Rascano and John Arnaudon. Arnaudon's free pass scored Bishop. Jim Meese drove in the third run of the inning with a clean single to right field. Charlie Brice was safe on a fielder's choice, when Rascano, doing a good imitation of the hesitation waltz at third base, was thrown out at the plate. Tim Rosgen's force of Brice at second shut down the Wolves run machine.

Cal began to peck away at San Ramon, scoring a run in the top of the second frame, on no hits. Chuck Cary came home after series of Wolf miscues. SR Pitcher John Chapman put Cary on second by a man over throw at first base. Another error, by Arnaudon, on a ball hit by Mike Daughtery, sent Cary legging for home. The ball and the runner arrived at the plate simultaneously, but the catcher, Miller, dropped the ball.

Events quieted down for the next few innings, though San Ramon did mount a threat in the fourth. In the bottom of the inning, Cal second sacker Smith and center fielder Chuck Cary made outstanding catches of what could have been run scoring base hits, the winds to the contrary notwithstanding.

San Ramon scored again in the fifth, on a crunching double by Miller. He came home on a triple by Arnaudon, who was out at the plate attempting to turn his hit into a homer. At this point, out went Cal pitcher Brett Cary and in came reliever Mike Daughtery, who made the final out of the inning and picked up the win for his one third of an inning's work.

The Grizzlies shook off their early inning torpor, with a nine-batter sixth inning. Larry Walters started the annihilation of San Ramon with a ground rule double, Cary (Chuck) followed with a single, as did Dan Nelson, whose hit sent Walters home. Chapman walked Billie Jones to load the bags, at which point Tyler Laurie got a very timely single which scored Cary. Nelson scored on Arnaudon's miscue of a grounder off the bat of Tom Woodmansee.

Dons smash Stangs in girls' softball

"Now remember," Amador girls softball coach Vivian Straight reminded her club before the game, "we can't give up more than three runs or we'll spoil our record."

And the Dons did just that, holding a struggling Monte Vista team to just three runs while bringing in 39 in Friday's EBAL action.

Home runs by sluggers Sheryl Withoft, Debbie Oxsen, Deanna Marengo and Lisa Leach led the defending champion Amador club to its opening league victory and boosted its record to 4-0 overall.

In pre-season action, the Dons held all opponents to just three runs, while maintaining a 21-run average.

Pitcher Marengo hurled four strike-outs, while Cindy Aafedt and Carolyn Fleischer tripled for the winners. Wothoft and Fleischer batted in eight and seven runs, respectively, while Oxsen was responsible for three of the six home runs. Freshman Jayne Kuhns and Jean Borton played well defensively for the Dons, while Kris Brittain also had a good day.

"Our team is just beginning to jell," commented coach Straight. "We're just starting to play good ball," she added.

Monte Vista managed a meager two runs in the second inning as Laura Fumagalli batted in two runners, while Amador brought in four. The Mustangs mustered one more run, but it was all over as the Dons, in the fourth frame, brought in 13 runs.

In the junior varsity contest, the Dons trounced the 'Stangs 20-9.

In other league action, Dublin, behind a fine pitching effort by Gail Willard, downed Foothill 11-2. The Gaels, 5-0 overall, are 2-0 in league action and will face the Dons Tuesday. In the junior varsity game, Foothill squeaked by the Dublin club, 14-13.

Monte Vista beats Granada

Greg Goodman fanned 12 Granada batters while tossing a two-hit shutout to lead Monte Vista past the Matadors, 5-0, Friday afternoon in Livermore.

Goodman, who opened up the Mustangs' season with a no-hitter, gave Monte Vista its third win of the young EBAL season without a loss and handed the Matadors, who have yet to win a league game after going undefeated in pre-season, their third straight loss.

The Mustangs broke open a tight pitching duel between Goodman and the Mats' Steve Stone by scoring two runs in both the fifth and sixth innings and a single run in the seventh.

Mike Mattson led off the Mustang fifth by drawing a walk on a 3-2 pitch off losing hurler Stone. Barry Long's attempted sacrifice bunt failed, as Mattson was forced at second on a fine throw by Stone. Bill Howard singled, moving Long to second, but ninth-batter Goodman struckout, leaving it up to Greg Bisbee to produce a run for Monte Vista.

Bisbee, who had flied out and struckout in his two previous appearances, looped a 2-2 pitch into shallow centerfield. Don Smith, the Mats' centerfielder, misjudged the bounce and the ball rolled past him, scoring Long with the only run the Mustangs would need.

Mark Silva followed with a run-scoring single to left field, but the Mats escaped any further trouble in the inning when left-fielder Jaryl Hudson made a perfect throw to the plate to catch Bisbee trying to score.

The Mustangs took advantage of two more costly Granada errors in the sixth to make it 4-0. Kevin Jones walked, and Walt Finn reached base when Stone threw Finn's attempted sacrifice bunt off the glove of first-baseman Tim Duke.

Cowboys win SR Relays

Livermore High School used its depth and balance to run away with the varsity championship of the San Ramon Relays in Danville yesterday.

The meet, conducted under light sprinkles, also saw Amador take the frosh-soph title and Livermore win the girls' championship.

Livermore's varsity scored 64 points, 18 more than runner-up Amador. The Cowboys won five first places. Livermore took the distance medley relay in 11:02.0 and the two-mile relay in 8:32.0 to gain an early lead.

Distance star Boyd Tarin of Livermore ran the final leg of the distance medley race and ran a leg on the two-mile team. Tarin is just coming off an injury.

Dan Harvey of Dublin, who is also coming off an injury, ran away with the open two-mile in 9:48.3. Freshman Steve Lloyd of Livermore was second in a fine 9:59.2.

"I had a stress fracture," Harvey said of his injury after the race was over. "I'm just rounding back into shape."

Despite the injury Harvey still has high goals for the season. He finished third in the North Coast Section cross-country race last fall.

"I hope to run around 9:05 by the end of the year," he said.

Despite Harvey's individual brillance, Livermore's depth proved to be the highlight of the meet.

The Cowboys supported their distance running victories with wins in the pole vault, high jump and long jump.

Runner-up Amador took firsts in the 880-yard shuttle hurdles and the mile relay. The hurdle team ran a 1:46.0 to edge out Dublin and the Don mile relay team won in 3:36.5.

Mike Bowles of San Ramon came through with the best individual mark of the day when he threw the discus 169-2 for one of the East Bay Area's top marks this season.

Net tourney in second day

Despite steady showers during the matches, the Livermore Tennis Club's 16th annual Calcutta Tournament ended its first day of competition yesterday, at Granada High School.

The tournament continues today. Flights five, seven and nine (which were rained out yesterday) will be contested this morning. At 11:15 a.m. the winners of yesterday's matches will compete in rounds.

In competition yesterday Jean Jamieson and Barbara Beane won the first flight with 20 victories on the round-robin schedule. Pete Mattern and Joy Thomas finished second.

In flight two Chris Anderson and Cathy Schall won with 21 games. Dan Roach and Mary Powell were second with 17 games.

Mike Ryan and Sandy MacCracken took the third flight with 20 games. Jerry Russell and Eva Leong were second with 16 wins.

Dave Heweitt and Beth McKown won the fourth flight with 21 victories. Chris Neuenschworden and Dorthy Irby were second with 18 wins.

Hitters dominate spring training

The hitters have caught up with the pitchers in the major league baseball spring training camps — and have passed them right by.

The Kansas City Royals ripped three White Sox pitchers for 19 hits, including a triple by Jim Wohlford, and crushed Chicago 14-0. Wohlford had two other hits and Tom Poquette added three safeties to the Royals' attack. The White Sox also hurt themselves with seven errors, shortstop Manny Estrada committing five of them.

George Scott's three-run homer was the big blow as the Milwaukee Brewers pounded out 17 hits in downing the San Francisco Giants 14-7. The Giants collected 14 hits, including Chris Arnold's homer.

Oakland had 15 hits and Stan Bahnsen and Jim Todd blanked Cleveland as the A's stopped the Indians 7-0. Billy North had three hits for Oakland, while Cleveland Manager Frank Robinson, making his first appearance this spring as a designated hitter, singled and walked in two at-bats.

Pinch-hitter Terry Crowley slammed an inning-opening homer and Bill Plummer followed with a three-run blast as Cincinnati scored seven runs in the ninth inning and took a 13-7 come-from-behind victory over the New York Met Mike Lum drove in five runs on three singles for Cincinnati while John Milner had four hits, including a homer, and four RBI for the Mets, who tallied five runs in the eighth inning.

Willie Horton homered in the third inning, then drove in the tie-breaking run in the seventh to lift the Detroit Tigers to a 6-4 victory over the Boston Red Sox. Carlton Fisk had four consecutive hits for the Sox, including a three-run homer in the sixth.

The San Diego Padres scored five runs in the ninth — three coming home on Willie McCovey's double — to defeat the Chicago Cubs 7-2. Dave Winfield and Doug Rader tripled for San Diego. Jose Cardenal had a single and two doubles for Chicago.

Tom Grieve's throw from right field cut down Larry Bittner at the plate to halt a four-run Montreal uprising in the ninth inning and preserve the Texas Rangers' 8-7 victory over the Expos. Montreal scored three runs in the first inning, but Texas came back with six in the fourth.

Dave Parker knocked in three runs with a homer and a single to lead the Pittsburgh Pirates over the St. Louis Cardinals 6-4. Richie Hebner had three hits, including a homer, and Craig Reynolds had three hits for the Pirates. Bake McBride was 3-for-3 for the Cardinals.

The Atlanta Braves and Philadelphia Phillies battled to a 3-3 tie before their game was called because of darkness after 11 innings. Darrell Evans stroked a home run for Atlanta and Jay Johnstone, who knocked in the Phils' first two runs with a bases-loaded single, slammed a homer in the fourth.

Schall went on to win it with a 6-4 effort in the final set.

In other contests, Granada blanked California, 7-0, as the talented Mats put forth a fine effort.

Jackson, Holtzman go to Baltimore

BALTIMORE (AP) — Oakland A's owner Charles O. Finley was not dealing from strength when he traded two of his disgruntled superstars — slugging outfielder Reggie Jackson and pitcher Ken Holtzman — but he still thinks the blockbuster deal with the Baltimore Orioles was a great one for his team.

"I think under the circumstances, it will turn out to be one of the best trades we ever made," Finley said Friday after trading Jackson, Holtzman and minor-league pitcher Bill Van Bommel to Baltimore for pitcher Mike Torrez, rookie right-hander Paul Mitchell and outfielder Don Baylor."

The circumstances Finley was talking about were that Jackson and Holtzman were two of his unsigned star players, who would become free agents if the A's did not sign them for the 1976 season.

If Finley didn't sign them, they could sign for the 1977 season with any club in baseball, even making potential big deals with the expansion franchises, and the A's would get nothing in return.

Consequently, Finley went to the market place and all the other dealers knew he was not dealing with the best hand. The other clubs knew, since Finley apparently wasn't going to pay Jackson and Holtzman what they were asking, they were in the driver's seat.

Jackson was reportedly asking for a three-year contract for about $200,000 a year. Holtzman also wanted a three-year pact totaling $460,000 compared with the $93,000 he earned last year.

Jackson, especially, and Holtzman were not overly happy with the trade. Jackson, in fact, might balk at moving from the A's to the Orioles.

While Jackson was declining comment, his agent and business partner, Gary Waller, said: "I've never seen Reggie more reflective in his life. He has to give it a lot of thought.

Martinez Relays

Mats win hurdles

Granada won the girls' division title of the Martinez Relays yesterday. The Matadors collected 19 points to 17 for runner-up Pleasant Hill.

Granada gave a boost to the EBAL track's prestige by winning the boy's large-school 480-yard high hurdle shuttle relay in 1:06.5. The Matadors nipped Piedmont Hills for the title.

With so many athletes taking part in yesterday's relays at Diablo Valley College, a few were bound to surface with outstanding performances.

Among the most successful were Tom Philbert of Acalanes High, and Keith Taylor of San Jose's Piedmont Hills High. The pair gained recognition in different ways, and different events.

Philbert became the first East Bay high schooler to clear 14 feet in the pole vault, clearing 14-1 before missing at 14-6.

Taylor anchored Piedmont Hills, the "A" (large school) champ, to wins in the sprint medley, mile relay, 440 relay, and 880 relay. If a Most Valuable Tracker award had been given away, Taylor would have been it for helping his school earn 32 points.

For the second consecutive year, the Martinez Relays were held in Pleasant Hill. Meet organizers admit they like the all-purpose track at DVC, rain or shine.

Behind Taylor and a stable of other sprint and middle distance runners, Piedmont Hills ran away from all the "A" (1600 or more students) schools. San Rafael, runnerup with 26, got the best look at the winners' flying heels.

Retirement administrator

Krause says plan will hike costs

Alameda County Bureau

OAKLAND — Hiring a $25,000 per year administrator will raise the cost of administering the county employe's retirement association fund by $137,000, county Treasurer-Tax Collector Frank M. Krause has charged.

When the Alameda County Employe's Retirement Board invoked Assembly Bill 470 and hired an administrator, the county could no longer pay the fund's administrative costs through the county's general fund, according to Krause.

Administrative costs have been limited to one-tenth of one percent of the fund's $172 million in assets.

But a bill pending in the state senate would raise those administrative costs limits to 18 of one percent, Krause claims, and jack the administrative costs to $309,000.

The senate bill was "put in on behalf of the Alameda County Employees' Retirement Association," Krause charges.

But by hiring the administrator, the retirement board is forced to finance its costs through employe's funds, said Krause.
